

Worry and experience of harm from everyday risks

Worry + country value
Experience + country value

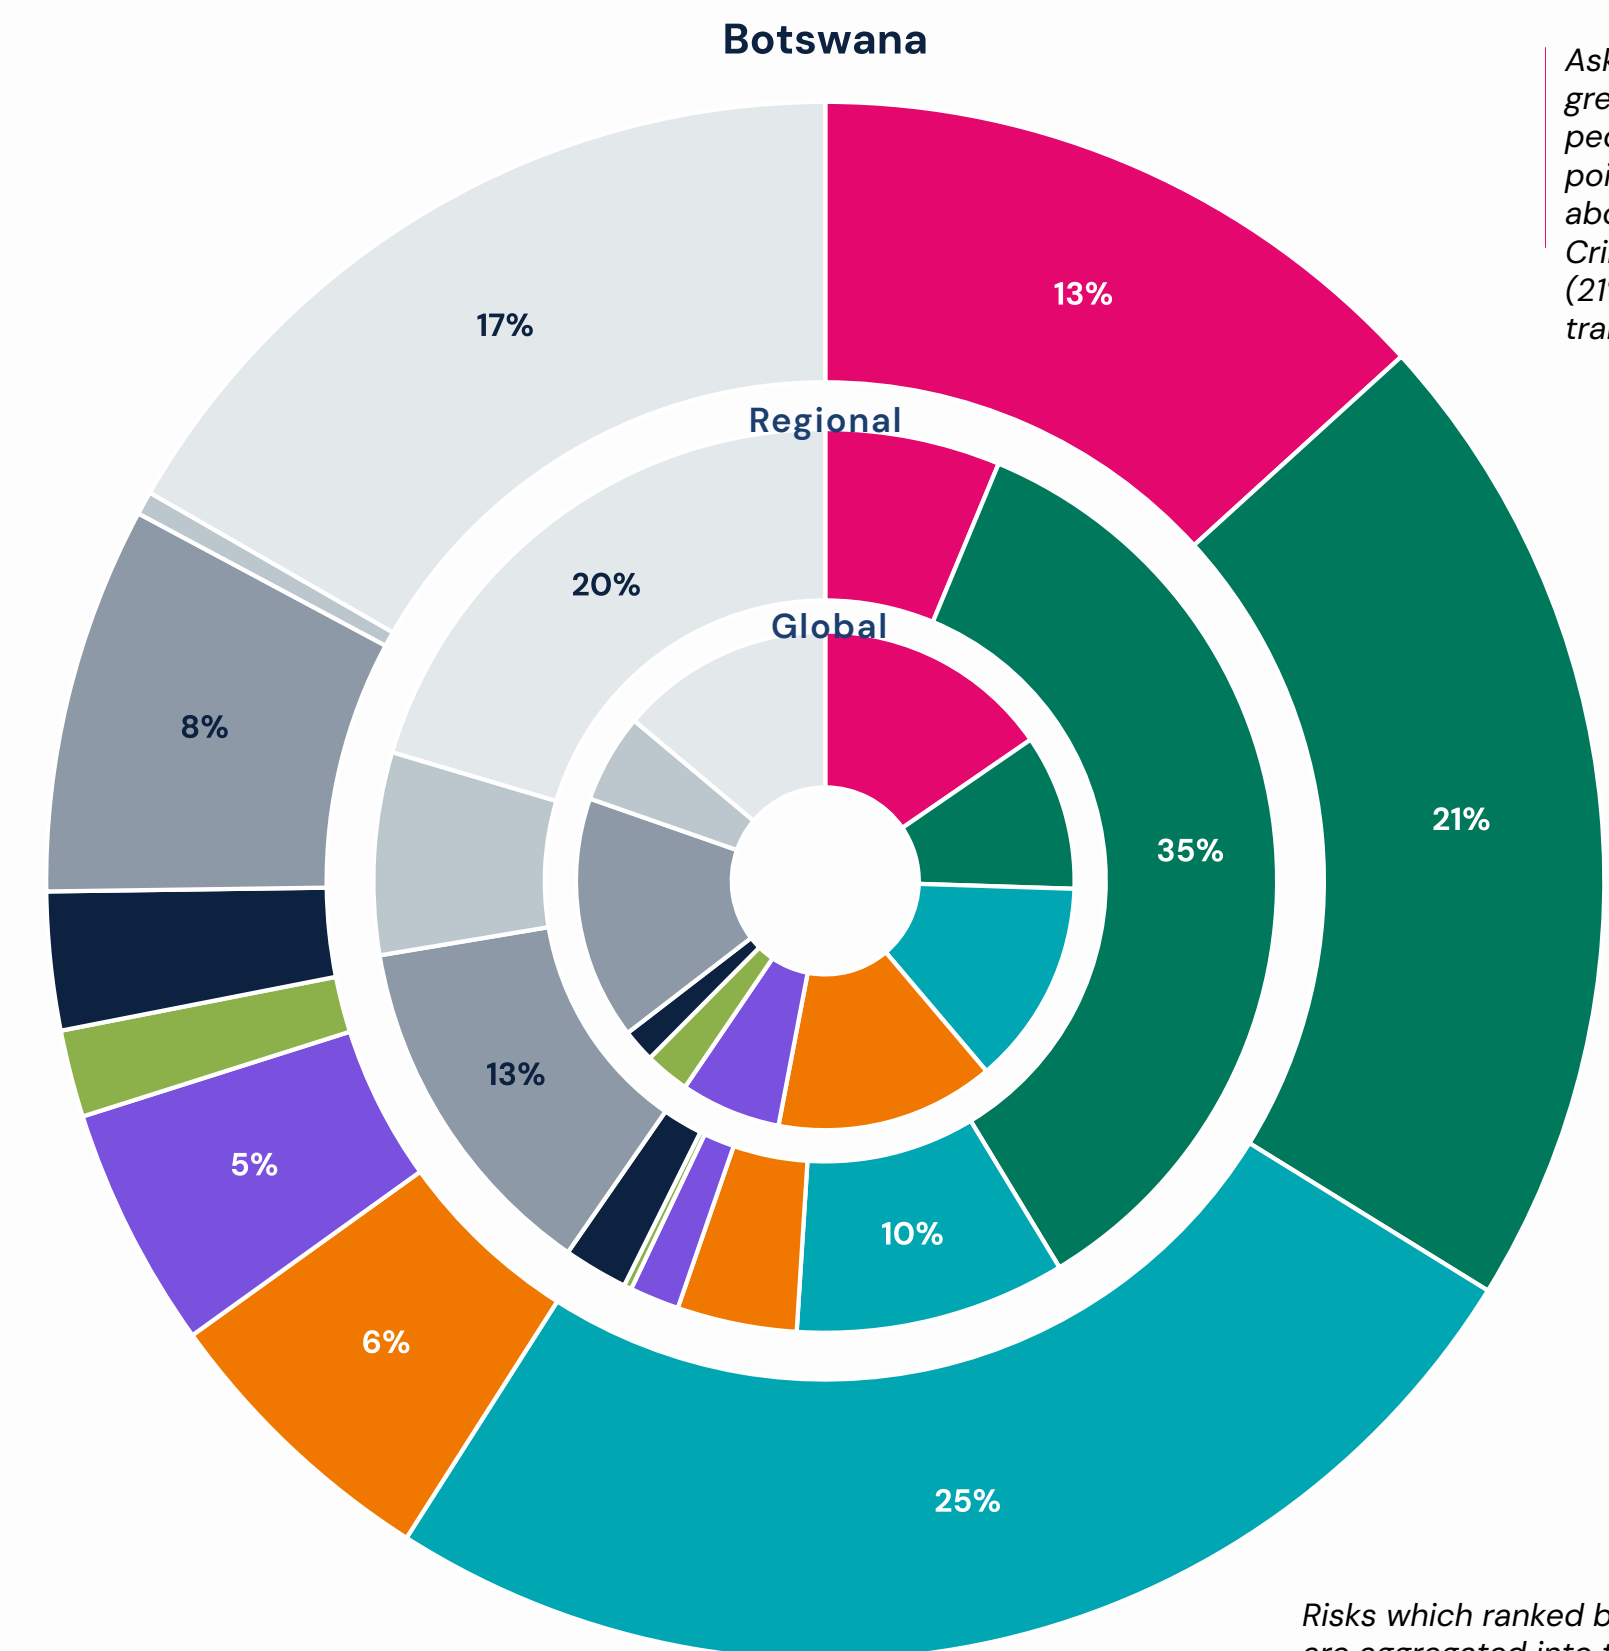

Dashed lines represent global average.
Dotted lines represent regional average.

People in Botswana are most worried about prolonged severe weather (81%) and violent crime (81%) causing them serious harm, the two highest levels of concern among the ten risks asked about. Across all ten, worry in Botswana runs in line with the global average. Concern far outstrips lived experience, however: while 81% worry about prolonged severe weather, only 14% have actually been harmed by it in the past two years. The harm most commonly experienced in Botswana is prolonged severe weather (14%). The gap between worry and experience is widest for road and traffic accidents, where 80% are worried but 8% have actually been affected.
