

Worry and experience of harm from everyday risks

People in the Gambia are most worried about road and traffic accidents (84%) and mental health issues (73%) causing them serious harm, the two highest levels of concern among the ten risks asked about. Across all ten, worry in the Gambia runs in line with the global average. Concern far outstrips lived experience, however: while 84% worry about road and traffic accidents, only 10% have actually been harmed by it in the past two years. The harm most commonly experienced in the Gambia is the food they eat (14%). The gap between worry and experience is widest for road and traffic accidents, where 84% are worried but 10% have actually been affected.

Top of mind risk to safety

Asked to name the single greatest risk to their daily safety, people in the Gambia most often point to health problems (18%), above the global figure of 13%. The economy and personal finances ranks second (17%), followed by road and transport accidents (9%).

Risks which ranked below 2% of the global average are aggregated into this 'Other risks' category.
