

Worry and experience of harm from everyday risks

People in Japan are most worried about prolonged severe weather (87%) and road and traffic accidents (87%) causing them serious harm, the two highest levels of concern among the ten risks asked about. Across all ten, worry in Japan runs higher than the global average. Concern far outstrips lived experience, however: while 87% worry about prolonged severe weather, only 11% have actually been harmed by it in the past two years. The harm most commonly experienced in Japan is prolonged severe weather (11%). The gap between worry and experience is widest for road and traffic accidents, where 87% are worried but 6% have actually been affected.
