

Worry and experience of harm from everyday risks

Worry + country value
Experience + country value

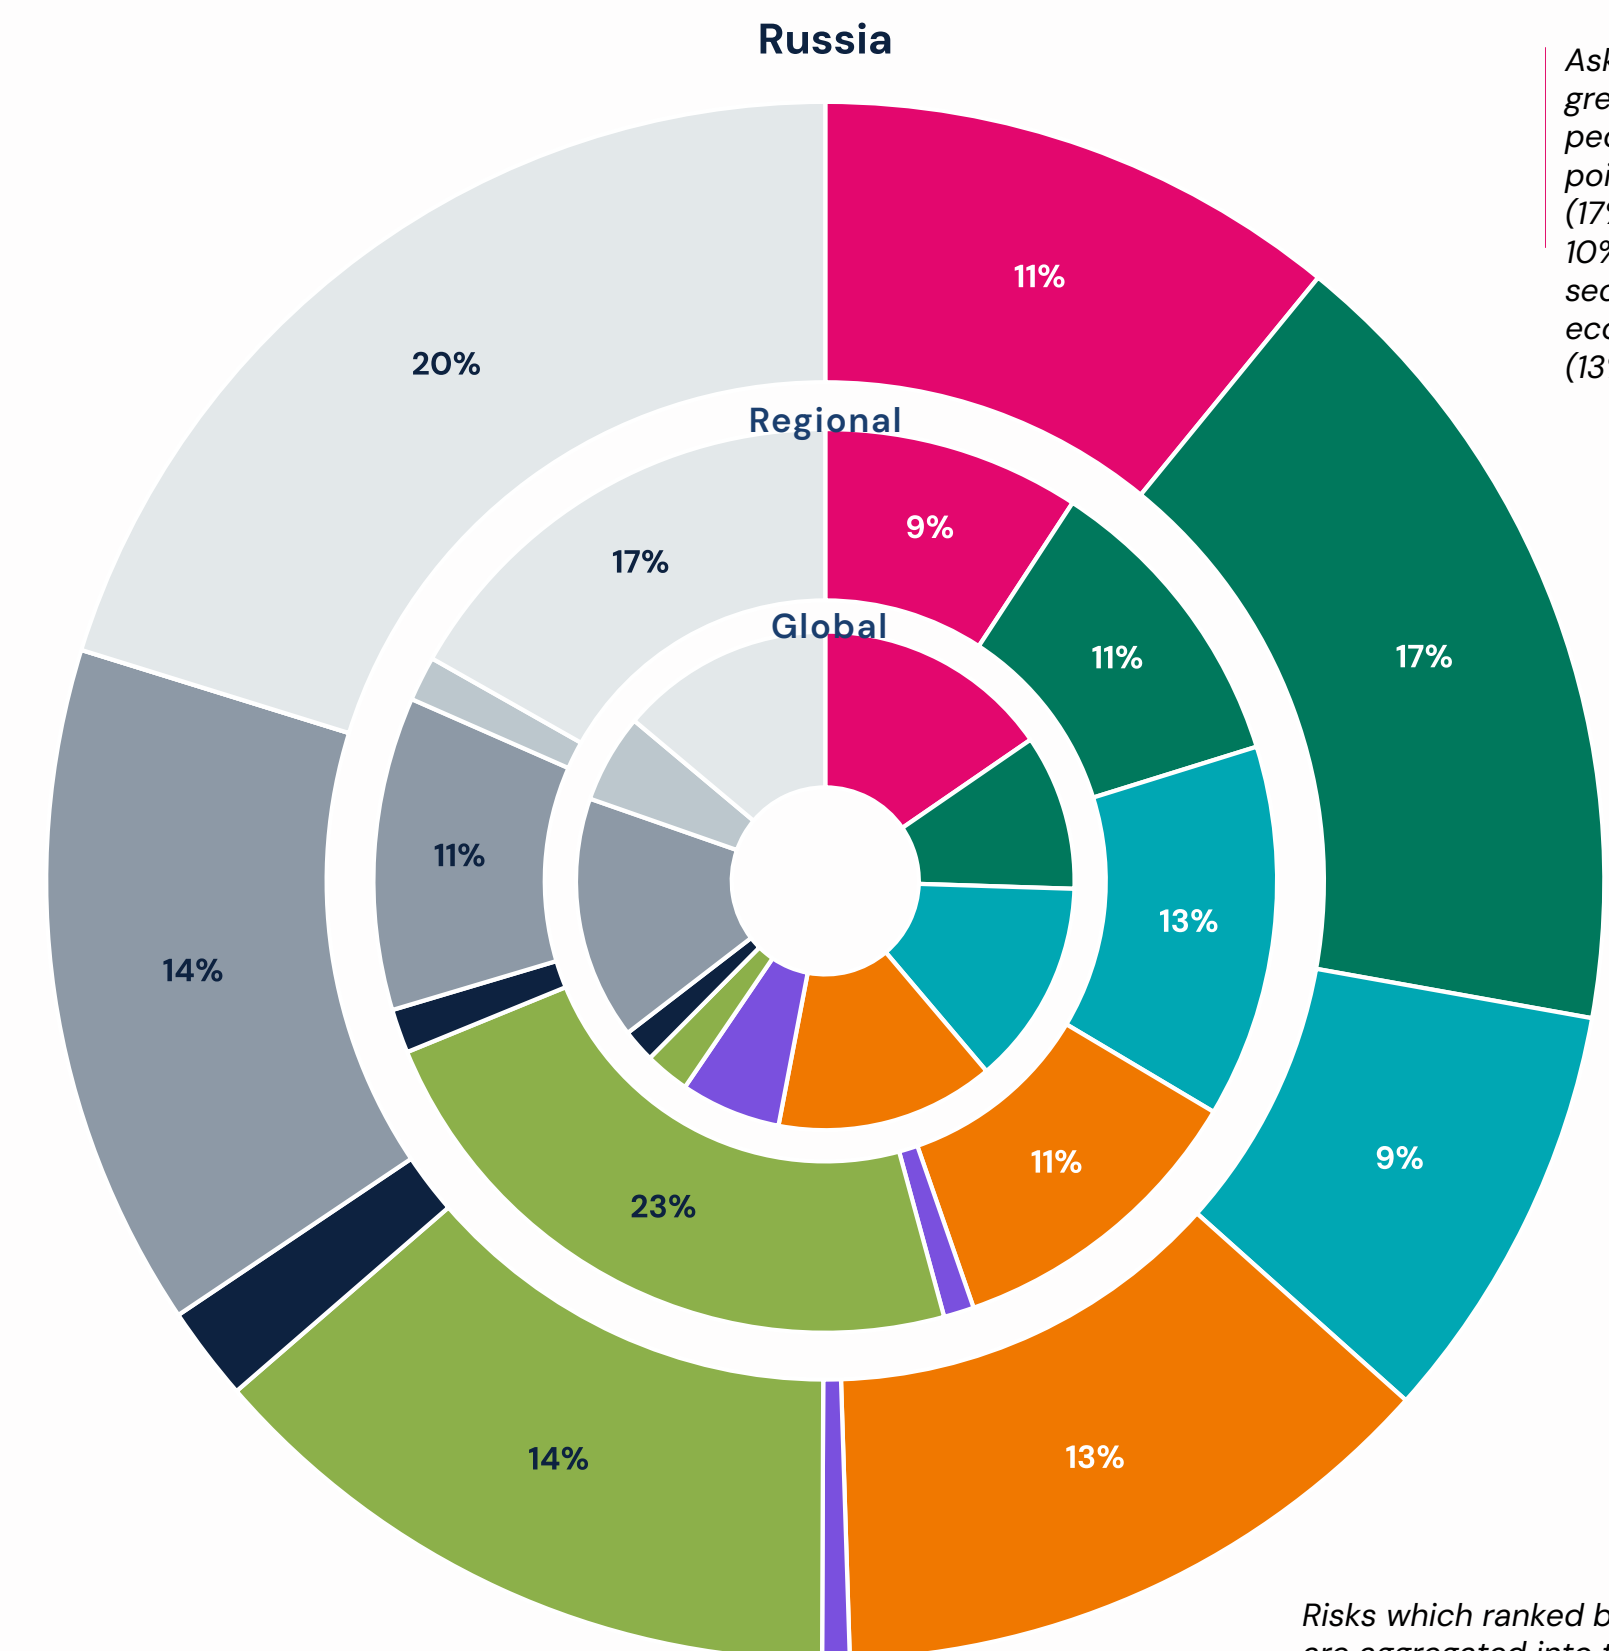

Dashed lines represent global average.
Dotted lines represent regional average.

People in Russia are most worried about road and traffic accidents (79%) and violent crime (74%) causing them serious harm, the two highest levels of concern among the ten risks asked about. Across all ten, worry in Russia runs in line with the global average. Concern far outstrips lived experience, however: while 79% worry about road and traffic accidents, only 6% have actually been harmed by it in the past two years. The harm most commonly experienced in Russia is prolonged severe weather (10%). The gap between worry and experience is widest for road and traffic accidents, where 79% are worried but 6% have actually been affected.
