

Worry and experience of harm from everyday risks

Worry + country value
Experience + country value

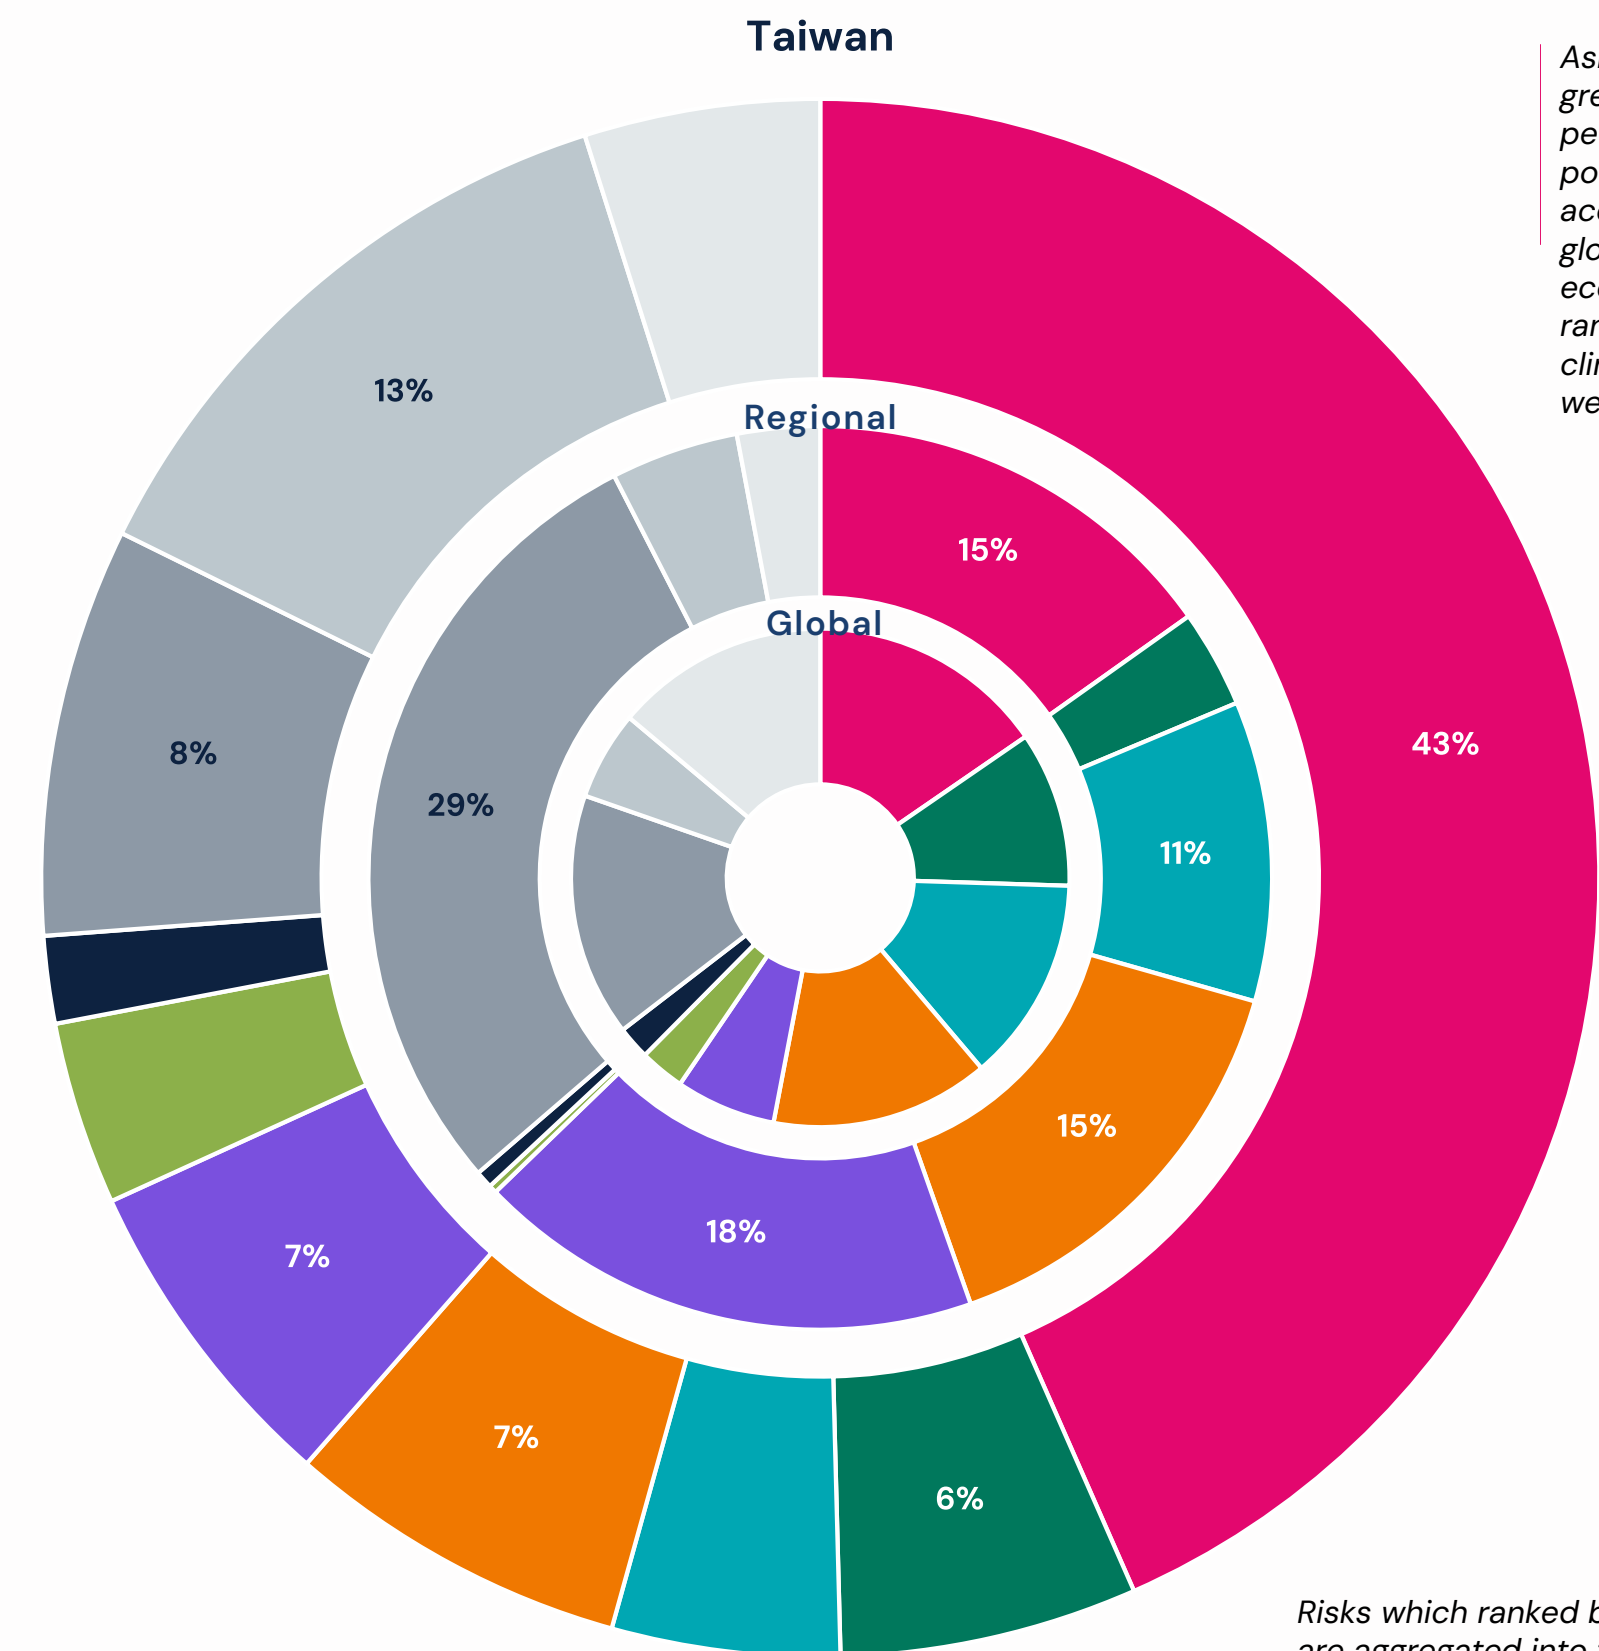

Dashed lines represent global average.
Dotted lines represent regional average.

People in Taiwan are most worried about road and traffic accidents (79%) and severe weather events (75%) causing them serious harm, the two highest levels of concern among the ten risks asked about. Across all ten, worry in Taiwan runs lower than the global average. Concern far outstrips lived experience, however: while 79% worry about road and traffic accidents, only 8% have actually been harmed by it in the past two years. The harm most commonly experienced in Taiwan is road and traffic accidents (8%). The gap between worry and experience is widest for severe weather events, where 75% are worried but 3% have actually been affected.

Top of mind risk to safety

Road and transport
Crime and violence
Health
Economy and financial
Climate and severe weather
War/terrorism
Work
Other risks*
Nothing/No risk
Don't know

Asked to name the single greatest risk to their daily safety, people in Taiwan most often point to road and transport accidents (43%), above the global figure of 15%. The economy and personal finances ranks second (7%), followed by climate change and severe weather (7%).

Risks which ranked below 2% of the global average are aggregated into this 'Other risks' category.